October 2009 - Intepro Systems, market leaders in power system and component ATE, have strengthened their UK based team with the appointment of a new Sales Manager and strategic redeployment of other senior managers.

Following the recent relocation of their European HQ to a new facility in Sandhurst, Berkshire, Intepro announce the appointment of Simon Tanner to the role of UK Sales Manager. Simon is a qualified electronics engineer with many years experience of the power industry having held many roles in engineering, ATE support and customer service within a multi-national power supply manufacturer. Since then he has had a number of roles in customer service and technical sales with major ATE and global systems suppliers in markets diverse as aviation, automotive, military and commercial industrial manufactures of electronic products, military radar and civil aviation. He has worked around the world with OEMs and country representatives and their end customers to promote and sell turnkey solutions. In addition to his experience of the power and electronics ATE market he has further developed his ATE knowledge to include equipment such as X-ray, visual inspection, flying probe and clip testing. Now with over 23 years experience in all aspects power, aviation, automotive, locomotive, military and commercial electronics he is very pleased to join Intepro Systems, the Power Test Experts as their New UK Sales Manager.

As part of the same restructuring at Intepro, Nicky Charles takes on the role of UK and Europe Support Manager to give greater support to UK customers and a growing number of sales partners and Colin Sycamore changes roles from European Sales Manager to the new position of Global Service Manager to provide the highest level of service to the large installed customer base and the growing list of new installations.

Colin Sycamore, the new Global Service Manager of Intepro comments, "Intepro has been supplying ATE solutions all over the world since 1981. Our extensive installed customer base, continued sales growth and the mission critical nature of our test systems means that fast, efficient service and calibration is essential. With Simon now on board to continue our UK sales development and local service issues being handled by Nicky Charles, I am now free to take a more proactive role in supporting all of our customers worldwide to ensure they get maximum performance from their Intepro systems."

Intepro specialise in the provision of complex instrumentation and ATE systems for design validation, production test and burn-in of power systems, power supplies, DC:DC Converters and power components.

Intepro has supplied ATE systems to end users and manufacturers all over the world to test power electronics used in a wide range of applications. Intepro's knowledge and expertise in moving and measuring power makes their products unequalled for production testing, ESS screening, repair and characterization of power components and sub assemblies used across all industries including telecommunications, aerospace, military and other power electronics applications

Intepro has a global reach with direct sales offices in the U.K., Ireland and U.S. and distributors covering Europe, China, Korea and Japan. Intepro have a highly specialised engineering team with world wide experience in delivering custom and turnkey test solutions, integrating the latest technological innovations to the test process such as, dual well fixturing, machine vision and automated handling.
